Method #1 – eBaying

With this method we will be earning money via eBay.

You will need a couple of things before starting this method:

- an eBay account.
- a verified PayPal.
- funds to post the eBay auction.

With this eBay method we will be selling an iPhone 4s.

You will have to start a new auction on eBay.

Place your iPhone 4s auction in the category: 'Cell phones & Accessories > Cell Phone Accessories > Manuals & Guides' and put the title as title: 'iPhone 4s - Guide - Great deal.

Put in a picture of an iPhone 4s.

Now in the description you will put in a very small text (preferably grey) saying: 'a guide on an iPhone 4s, by reading and buying this you agree that you won't refund and that this is a GUIDE! By purchasing you automatically agree'. There is the catch.

After that, put in large text: 'No refunds, PayPal accepted'.

When that's all done make sure to add free shipping to your listing.

Once the customer purchased the 'iPhone 4s guide' you need to print the shipping label and head to the post-office IMMEDIATELY and ship it off.

Method #2 – Craigslist

This method is related to the eBay method.
With the Craigslist method you will get more local transactions and the money will still come through PayPal and it will still be shipped.

You are basically advertising the exact same thing as with the eBay auction, however you will write a long paragraph for Craigslist including 'you are paying for a guide' in between the lines.

This will be your description on Craigslist:

"Thank you for deciding to look at an iPhone, I have a few extras and I'm willing to sell them locally. This will be $175 via PayPal."

As you can see there, the 'guide' part is slipped in between the lines. Yet it still proves it's point. Also be sure to include your email and say 'Inquiries are available there'.

When someone messages you, fill them in and say 'I'm offering this to you for a STEAL, since you are the first to message me I'll offer you $35 off' (or pick any amount you want) whatever the case is, always send that to each inquiry whether they are first or not. Some will find it sketchy that they are first, others that are in a rush will see it as an opportunity to save money for free and snag it right up.

In this situation you will do the same as you did in the eBay method: Have them pay, print a shipping label, and mail it ASAP!.

Method 3 – Advertisement

This method is all about advertising your 'iPhone 5s guide' sale through sites like Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, or with Skype, Chatrooms, Omegle and every other communication site what you can think of.

Skype:

Use Clownfish to send out a link either to your eBay or Craigslist advert saying: 'Hey, since you are a good friend I'll give you a $35 discount on my iPhone 4S'.

Now the trick is to use clownfish on a Skype account with a decent amount of skype contacts. In most cases you should get some replies. If they say things like 'I'm interested', continue persuading them towards purchasing the phone (guide) and get a sale.

Facebook:

This way of advertising your 'iPhone 5s guide' is immoral, I personally wouldn't do this for people like family members or good friends, or anyone that can beat your ass.

However, friends of friends or just stupid people will be perfect for this.

For this method don't use eBay, just send the customer who is interested the details with the guide part snuck in the text and enjoy a sale from someone who can't read.

Omegle:

This can be used autopilot most of the time, there are plenty of chat spam software out on the internet which can help you with this.

You basically will go on the text part of Omegle and convince them to buy your 'iPhone 5s guide'.

This is basically the same as the Skype method but you'll have to do this 1 by one.

Twitter:

You will just send out tweets with a picture of the phone and the eBay link to your 'iPhone 5s guide'. This method should work for itself, and if anyone asks any questions, continue to convince them and tell them about it.

Instagram:

This hasn't been tested yet but it should work just as good as the other methods depending on how many followers you have. I would guess that this method has at least enough vulnerability that someone would fall for it.

Once again: Have them pay, print a shipping label, and mail it ASAP!

Method 4 – iOffer

What you will be doing with this method is listing products from iOffer.com on eBay.

What is iOffer?

iOffer is a website full of fake products / replica's for all kind of known brands. These are all A++ replicas and you can barely see the difference with the real products.

It is very unlikely that the buyer will notice the difference.

I would recommend using Beats headphones with this method, but things like sunglasses also work very well in the summer.

Now, once you've picked out an item, and made your iOffer account contact the seller of the item and make sure they understand the item needs to be shipped to your address, this isn't dropshipping.

After you've made the arrangements have the seller ship the items to your house. Now that you have a seller set up you need to list the item on eBay.

Go to eBay, and either make a new account, or use your current account. If you do not have 20+ feedback, I suggest you get that first, as it will be hard to sell anything at all on eBay without 20+ feedback.

Tip: there are plenty of people on Hackforums that will exchange feedback with you.

If you are using Beats, I recommend you to list them for $140-$160, buy it now only. There is no point in adding a bidding process, as it is a waste of time.

Make sure to make it so buyers have to buy the item when they click buy it now, and cannot hold it in their cart.

Basically you are ordering from iOffer.com then reselling on eBay, this method makes you a large sum of profit.
